

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed towards a multi-layered core golf ball that comprises a center, a cover and at least two core layers formed around the center to create an inner ball, wherein the outermost core layer is relatively stiff and hard relative to the center. At least the center or/and one core layer is comprised of an ionomer resin having a fully neutralized acid moiety.